

Abstract of the Disclosure

A space keyboard system, which informs a user whether or not a character is input using a force feedback method, and a method for inputting information therefor . The method of inputting information in a virtual space, comprising detecting a motion of a finger in space, interpreting the motion information detected and determining the location of the finger, and inputting a character information corresponding to the location of the finger that is determined and applying a force to the finger .